

The TC Beirne School of Law will host an international symposium on competition law ‘Cartels, Optimal Enforcement and Theories in Competition Law’ in Brisbane on 27 March 2018.

The speakers of this event will discuss the relevant issues of corporate accountability to infringements of competition law, in particular, anti-cartel law, its effective enforcement, establishing justice and fairness in that regard and optimising private and public enforcement by addressing and balancing corporate and individual accountability and deterrence on one hand, and achieving corrective justice and sufficiently recognising harm suffered from cartels by consumers and other victims on the other. The symposium will explore legal pluralism, social welfare, procedural fairness and the dynamics between public and private enforcement of anti-cartel law.

The symposium is organised for academics, legal practitioners, economists, regulators, judiciary and postgraduate students interested in this topic.
